Kind Attn: Respected Principal Ma'am, Government Degree College, Nalagarh

Respected Sir

It was indeed a pleasure that you have shown interest in noble cause i.e. spreading financial literacy and awareness for different identified segments of the society. To brief you please note Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) is the regulator of securities market in India. Under SEBI Act, 1992, SEBI has been mandated to protect interests of investors apart from development and regulation of securities market in India.

For the purpose of protection of interests of investors, it is the considered view of SEBI that though a majority of population is academically literate, it is a need of the hour to make them financially literate so that they can take their financial decisions in a more prudent and meaningful manner. SEBI further feels that it is imperative for investors to be aware of the intricacies of the financial markets which encompass importance of timely and sustained savings, investment only in recognized financial products, various avenues of investments, setting up of personal financial goals etc. so that they can secure their future by way of informed decision with regard to their investments. Further, SEBI feels it important that the common man should also be aware of menace of Ponzi Schemes and avoid investing their hard earned money in unrecognized financial products as also in unscrupulous money mobilization schemes.

To this end, SEBI has conceptualized a pan India mass financial literacy program encompassing basic tenets of financial literacy and investor awareness.

For these segments, SEBI with help of BSE/NSDL conducts short duration (generally 1 & 1/2 - 2 hours) financial literacy workshops of your institution covering importance of savings, investments, various financial instruments and cautions to be taken while investing in different financial products. These workshops are strictly product neutral and no canvassing/ marketing of any financial product is embodied in such workshops. SEBI/NSDL has so far conducted more than 30000 workshops, across the country, in a span of four years and a good number of workshops have been conducted for School Children. These workshops have been well appreciated by the participants and feedback has been quite positive and encouraging.

SEBI conducts such financial literacy workshops through its officers/accredited Financial Education Resource Persons at mutually convenient date and time. All cost in respect of study material for the participants and the trainer is borne by SEBI and the organization needs only to extend logistic support. We are of the considered view that conducting such financial literacy workshops for the working people.

We seek your cooperation in joining hands with SEBI for making a small but important step for your staff through helping them to understand basics of financial products investments, planning etc.. We would be happy to share any further information in this regard and your office can get in touch/ contact me(Robil Sahni, SEBI accredited Financial Education Resource Person) on 7018905967. In case of any further clarification, please feel free to contact us.

So Ma'am expecting time at your place.
